

Designing online assessment that is rigorous, trusted, flexible and scalable. Reporting from EADTU SIG Online Assessment

Dr Klaus-Dieter Rossade

Associate Dean Curriculum, Faculty of Wellbeing, Education and Language Studies

Director Assessment Programme, The Open University, UK

In this presentation I will talk about the work of an Online Assessment Special Interest Group of the European Association for Distance Teaching Universities. Colleagues from 18 member institutions (in 14 countries) have met regularly since March 2021 and shared their experiences and actions during Covid19 lockdowns and post-pandemic times. The fruits of this collaboration is a EADTU report which focusses on assessment futures, assessment design, trust and ethics, and assessment operations and processes. The report also has 15 Good Practice case studies and there is a website that will grow as the SIG continues its work. I will present key outcomes of the work of the SIG and invite discussions about a future of assessment that is rigorous, trusted, flexible and scalable.
